DOUBLE DEATH Baffles Police

New York Authorities Cannot Account for Demise of Husband and Wife.

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—Henry Hasznack and his wife, Anna, a middle-aged couple, were found dead today in their rooms on East Seventy-first street. An autopsy will be necessary to determine the cause of death, which physicians say must have occurred at least two days ago. There was nothing to indicate murder and no evidence of suicide.

A postal card found in the house seemed to indicate that the husband had died first. It was dated yesterday, addressed to Mrs. Hasznack, signed "I called to see you Friday evening in regard to the funeral of your husband. Will call again Sunday morning before the meeting."

One theory immediately propounded by the police was that Hasznack died suddenly and that his wife, after writing to O'Reilly about preparations for the funeral, met death herself suddenly.

KRUITTSCHNITT IS IN OGDEN

Prominent Railroad Official Inspecting the Harriman Lines.

Spent the Night in the City and Left for the West This Morning.

A prominent railroad official in the person of J. Kruttschnitt, second highest official of the Harriman system, spent last night in this city while making his semi-annual inspection tour of the company's lines. He arrived on a special train from the east at 4:35 yesterday afternoon and left at an early hour this morning over the Southern Pacific.

Mr. Kruttschnitt is vice president of the Harriman system and is also a director of maintenance and operation. He is next in authority under Judge Robert S. Lovett, who was elected president and chairman of the Union Pacific and Southern Pacific boards of directors following the death of E. H. Harriman.

According to Mr. Kruttschnitt's secretary, there is no significance in the visit of the high railroad official, claiming that it is only the semi-annual tour which is made over the company's lines. The only other prominent official accompanying the vice president was Chief Engineer Huntley, who came as far as this city, but left last night on the return trip to Chicago. A number of division superintendents traveled with Mr. Kruttschnitt over their respective divisions.

This is the first of the prominent official since last April.

TWO UNIONS RULED OUT OF FEDERATION

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 3.—The building trades department of the American Federation of Labor today suspended the International Association of Steam and Hot Water Fitters and Helpers and the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America. The action was taken according to W. J. Spencer, secretary of the A. F. of L., because the unions failed to obey what is known as the Tampa decision. James Kirby, president of the building trades department is a member of the ousted carpenters, and it was said that the suspension of the union he represents precludes all hope of his re-election on Monday.

The Steam and Hot Water Fitters were barred from membership because they persisted in doing work which the plumbers and gas fitters claimed as a part of their duties.

The carpenters' suspension was caused by a protest of the sheet metal workers.

The suspension by the department will unseat all local unions of the two internationals in the councils of the building trades department.

The system of universal working cards was adopted by the department.

TO OPEN BRANCH HOUSES IN NEVADA

United States Fuel & Powder Company Will Have Headquarters in Ogden.

Local Concern Will Enter Into Business With the Standard Oil Company.

The establishment of two branch distributing points in Nevada marks the rapid development and advancement of the United States Fuel & Powder company, which has headquarters in this city. S. F. Heydenfelt, representing this firm, recently made arrangements for such a branch at Winnemucca, Nevada, and it is the plan of the company to establish a branch distributing station in the southern section of the state.

According to Mr. Heydenfelt, his company will install coal bunkers and keep constantly on hand a number of carloads of coal to supply the trade in that locality. Besides the fuel, a powder magazine is to be erected and a large quantity of powder will be stored.

The annual consumption of coal in the state of Nevada is about 100,000 tons a year, while the annual consumption of powder in the state is estimated to be valued at from $500,000 to $700,000. Mr. Heydenfelt informs the Nevada trade that his company will sell both coal and powder at a more reasonable figure than it is being sold there at present.

Ogden is the distributing point for the entire intermountain country. The stockholders of the company are John T. Bybee, Frank L. Moore, C. A. Jackson, J. Rostan, W. R. Vanfleet, A. A. Wenger, William Bostaph, F. S. Heydenfelt, James Ballantyne, Dr. J. Gordon, J. Douglas, C. H. Hussey and Francis L. Woods.

At present the company is prospecting in the vicinity of Hot Springs for a site upon which to build a powder magazine sufficiently large to store five carloads of the explosive.

It is also the intention to locate an oil yard here and enter into competition with the Standard Oil company by handling all brands of independent oils.

THEATRE

"POLLY OF THE CIRCUS."

A well-filled house witnessed and applauded "Polly of the Circus" at the Orpheum theater last night, the play being one of the most unique and interesting dramas that has been seen in any Ogden playhouse this season.

The cast of the play is an unusually large one, there being more than a score of characters introduced during the progress of the production. The main theme of the play, however, revolves upon Polly, the pretty little barabrack rider of the touring circus, and Rev. John Douglas, the young minister of the staid and orthodox village in which the comely equestrian meets with an accident while doing her stunt in the ring.

This is where the play really starts. The injured rider is brought to the home of the young parson, who chances to be a bachelor living in the parsonage of his church with a colored auntie as his housekeeper. To the narrow acumen of the village gossip it is "something awful"—this barabrack rider being thrust into their midst and into the very home of the minister at that. In holy horror they hold up their hands and their tongues wag.

Miss Ida St. Leon, as Polly, plays her part with exquisite simplicity. She displays no affectation, no superfluity of action, and no artificial gestures. Miss St. Leon is an exceedingly clever little artist, and the audience cannot help liking her all the more because the villagers do not.

Polly learns that she is a thorn in the side of the minister's reputation; but she does not learn this until she has fallen in love with the parson. She has recovered her health and decides to steal away and return to her old life.

The part of the parson is taken by Willard Robertson, an actor of most evident cleverness. The ministerial duties of account and the very nature of the leave and entreats her to remain, but she tells him that she must go back to her "people." She leaves. A month later the show plays in the same village again, and the pastor has become aware of why Polly returned to the old life. He goes to the show grounds—and the audience goes with him.

The veil of circus life is lifted. The audience is allowed to peep behind the stirring music of the band and the dazzle of the spangled costumes. During this act the famous St. Leon family are introduced. The scenes shift and Polly is once more in the ring, riding on the back of her old horse. She sees the parson coming into the ring and falls from the animal's back. Her lover bends over her. She is not hurt. She is glad.

The play ends with one of the most picturesque tableaux that stage art could conjure. The pale green of the moonlit night shrouds the village. Only a few lights flicker dimly in the windows of the sleeping homes. Up the village road wends the caravan of circus wagons—the show is leaving. But Polly and the parson stand near the church together, clasped in one another's arms. They will stay.

The acting throughout the play is splendid and the scenery and costumes are strong, yet natural ones. The plot is strewn with tender pathos, softened with kindly humor. Everybody is profoundly pleased, and their view of life joyfully broadened.

"ERMINIE."

The opera "Erminie" by the members of the Ogden High School Alumni Association was presented to a large audience at the Ogden yesterday afternoon and evening. The inclement weather of yesterday interfered sadly with the attendance, but in spite of this the patronage accorded the home talent production at both Saturday performances was very satisfactory.

There was a perceptible improvement over the initial performance on Friday evening. Every member of the cast assumed their respective roles with an ease and degree of certainty which marked a great improvement in the piece.

One member of the cast who was omitted from special mention in the original mention of the production and who is certainly entitled to that honor of Miss Frances Van Buskirk. In the role of Marie she is afforded several excellent opportunities for a display of her splendid vocal talent and her efforts brought forth flattering comments from all those who witnessed the three performances.

It is also fitting that J. D. Spencer, of Salt Lake City, should be given credit for much of the success of the production. He assisted very much during the rehearsals and gave the association the benefit of his wide experience in theatrical work.

Arrangements are being made for the presentation of the opera in several surrounding towns. It was originally planned to put the opera in Salt Lake City on December 13, but this idea has been abandoned. It is now planned to give the opera in Logan on the 10th, in Provo on the 14th and possibly in Brigham City at a later date.
